fourth sunday of easter (OF year B)

third sunday of easter (EF)

It's no secret that the Catholic Church is 100% committed to family life. For us, marriage is an indissoluble sacrament, and a sign of divine love in the world. We have a lot of families around Prince of Peace, and we are always encouraging everything that helps moms, dads and children to be happy and holy. The love of family is one of the most powerful forces we have in our lives, and which often models for us God's love.

But there is another type of love which is just as important as love between a man and wife, or parent and child. That is the love of friendship. For most of human history, most cultures had an exalted notion of friendship, sometimes even at the expense of marriage and family life. In our own twisted age, romantic love is seen as the only "real" type of love, and the love of friendship has fallen by the wayside. The pervasive eroticism of our world is profoundly suspicious of the love between friends.

Yet, a look at the Bible and the lives of the saints shows us that some of the greatest heroes of our faith had incredibly intimate and strong friendships which were a source of virtue, not vice. Who can read of Ruth and Naomi, David and Jonathan, or Jesus and the Beloved Disciple, John, and not see the love of God imaged in those friendships? What about the love between Saint Francis and Saint Clare, Saints Basil the Great and Gregory Nazianzen, Saints Francis de Sales and Jeanne de Chantal, or Blessed John Henry Newman and Ambrose Saint John, and not be edified? St Thomas Aquinas remarked, "There is nothing on this earth to be prized more than true friendship."

I sense that there is a great thirst for connection and true intimacy in people today, especially young people. Holy spiritual friendships are a gift from God to help quench that thirst, which is essentially directed to God. I am continually confirmed in my opinion that people are often very lonely and they desperately need friendship. Even couples who are in happy marriages have this need.

As a Christian community, I think each one of us needs to make an examination of conscience as to how we are friends to others. God has put us together as a parish so that we might have a spiritual home where we might find friends who share our faith. How many people are attracted by grace to come through the doors of our church, and find truth preached and taught, beauty prayed and meditated, but do not experience the goodness of someone reaching out to them.

Being a welcoming, nurturing parish does not mean watering down the faith or doing gimmicky things during Mass to make people feel welcome. It means that each of us reaches out to those around us. Not by a silly display of fake fellowship, but by genuinely caring for those in our community and out. Friendship is an intimate part of our ability to be true disciples of Christ. As Blessed John Henry Newman wrote, "The best preparation for loving the world at large, and loving it duly and wisely, is to cultivate an intimate friendship and affection to those who are immediately around us."

The Catholic Church is, in theory, highly critical of secularism and individualism. Our corporate identity in Christ means that true friendship requires the renunciation of the self for the good of others, day in and day out. We are all connected, not just in virtue of being human, but by the wood of the Cross! As a parish dedicated to the Gospel of Peace, let us start by being a school of the Lord's friendship where everyone who crosses our doors can find in Him and in each other an image of love.

"O loving, tender Word of God, You tell me: 'I have marked the path and opened the gate with My Blood; do not be negligent in following it, but take the same road which I, eternal Truth, have traced out with My Blood.' Arise, my soul, and follow your Redeemer, for no one can go to the Father but by Him. O sweet Christ, Christ-Love, You are the way, and the door through which we must enter in order to reach the Father."

"O unfathomable depth! O Deity eternal! O deep ocean! What more could You give me than to give me Yourself?"

from the writings of St. Catherine of Siena on the Blessed Sacrament.

When you received the just reward for your labors in your check from work, what was the first thing you thought about doing with it? The mission of Prince of Peace is to share the fullness of the Gospel to all we encounter in our lives by equipping disciples to create and strengthen a personal relationship with Christ. By the grace of God, we are called to strive for personal holiness, participate fully in the vibrant life of the Church's Tradition and transform the world.
