Letter from our Pastor

An Extraordinary Parish for Ordinary People

Dear Friends in Christ,

Fr Pius Parsch, one of the luminaries of the Liturgical Movement, knew that it wasn't just important that Catholics learn how to pray the Mass well; he also knew that the Liturgy of the Hours, also known as the Breviary or Divine Office was also important as well. Here's what he had to say about it:

THE BREVIARY is the official prayerbook of the Church. The Holy Ghost and the Church have been working on it for more than 3,000 years, and it has become the basic book of prayer, a precious common fund to which the great men of prayer from every age have contributed their thoughts and sentiments. The two chief objectives which the breviary fulfills are: 1. it is the prayer of the Church as a body and, 2. it is a guide to genuine spiritual growth for the individual soul.

1. The breviary is above all the prayer of the Church, the prayer said in the name of the Church. It is helpful to understand the difference between private prayer and liturgical prayer. In private prayer I pray, mostly, for myself and my own affairs. It is the isolated person who stands in the centre of the action, and the prayer is more or less individualized. But in liturgical prayer, and therefore in the breviary, it is not primarily I who am praying, but the Church, the bride of Christ. The object of her prayer is broader, too: all the needs of God's kingdom here on earth. In liturgical prayer, I feel more like a member of a great community, like a little leaf on the great living tree of the Church. I share her life and her problems. The Church is praying through my mouth, I offer her my tongue to pray with her for all the great objectives of redemption, and for God's honour and glory. We weep, too, or rather the Church weeps through our tears, together with those who weep, rejoices through our joys together with those who rejoice, does penance with the repentant. All the sentiments of Holy Mother Church find their echo in our heart. This gives a deeper content to our prayer; we spread out far beyond our own selves.

2. There is a second side to the breviary, a second purpose it fulfills. In the universal spirit of prayer described above, the individual soul is not to lose sight of itself. The individual, too, must grow; that is the subjective side of liturgical prayer. For the man who prays, the breviary needs to be staff and guide and way to heaven.

The Church accompanies the priest and religious with this book all during his life. The breviary might be compared to the Angel Raphael who led the young Tobias successfully through all the dangers of his journey. The breviary is our own personal Angel Raphael—it leads us through the Church year; almost every day it holds up a special guide, a special hero for our imitation—the saint of the day. It is not easy to list all the advantages that one day's liturgical prayer in the breviary has to offer.

By means of the "hours" of the Divine Office the Church puts sword and trowel into our hands for every time-segment of the day. The breviary, as the prayer of the canonical hours and as the prayer of the Church year, is in the highest sense the guide for souls; we need to get acquainted with this guide, and let ourselves be led. One more thought: Breviary and Mass belong together; they form a unity, the liturgical day. We might compare the relationship to the sun and the planets. The Mass is the sun about which the planets, that is, the canonical hours, gravitate. The canonical hours prepare for the Mass, they surround the Mass, they try to realize and retain the fruits of the Mass, and spread them over the day.

In Christ,

Fr. Christopher Smith

meet the Kinkade family

Greg, a Charlestonian, and Sue, originally from Michigan, met back in 1999 while working together at BI-LO grocery store in Mount Pleasant! They remained friends over the years and married at POP in January 2017. Greg works with South State Bank and Sue works for Shipt! Both love travel, walks and movies together.

They have two children, Haleigh Kauffmann (22yo) & Jack Kauffmann (15yo). Both kiddos are graduates of our parish school. Haleigh is a student in social work at Winthrop University & Jack just completed his freshman year at Riverside High School. Jack has been an altar server at POP since he was in 2nd grade and is now an MC!

While Sue was born and raised in a large Catholic family (her parents are Joe & Dottie Sanda), Greg converted to Catholicism at age 25 at Christ the King in Mount Pleasant. They enjoy the Saturday 5p Mass most of all because they would attend Mass with Sue's parents. Now, they follow Jack's schedule of serving as to which Mass they'll attend. The family said, "we love POP and couldn't imagine being parishioners anywhere else!"

Celebrating the Liturgical Life of the Church

An Extraordinary Parish for Ordinary People

19 June: Feast of Saint Romuald. St. Romuald was born in Ravenna, Italy, to a noble family. No one could have imagined that a descendent of the Dukes of Onesti would have left his stately home for the most absolute austerity, entering history as a great reformer of the Benedictine Order and as Founder of the Congregation of Monk Hermits of Camaldolese, an Order that has given the Church two great Pontiffs, Pius VII and Gregory XVI, as well as a whole array of blessed and saints. Yet from his youth, Romuald had been attracted to the consecrated life. He sought silence and sacrifice. A turning point in Romuald's life was when his father killed a relative in a duel at which Romuald was forced to be present. He then fled to the monastery of St. Apollinaris and did penance and fasting for forty days, assuming responsibility for the sins of his father and begging for forgiveness. He prayed and wept almost without ceasing. So was the purity of his heart, and sincerity of repentance, that he was filled with the Holy Spirit, and his faith deepened. He eventually became a monk at the Abby, later becoming Abbot. Romuald went on to found several monasteries throughout Italy, but he longed for an even more austere life than that of the Benedictines. He founded an order of hermits known as the Camaldolese monks (an Italian branch of the Benedictine Order). Romuald's was one of the strictest orders for men in the West. Members lived isolated in small huts, observing strict silence and perpetual fasting, constantly praying or doing manual labor. The Life of St Romuald notes that the saint was totally enraptured by silence and solitude with God: "Contemplation of God enraptured him so forcefully that, almost blinded by tears and burning with an indescribable fire of love for God, he would cry out, 'Dear Jesus, peace of my heart, ineffable desire, sweetness and gentleness of the angels and saints...'" St. Romuald brought many sinners, particularly those of rank and power, back to God. He died in 1027, having lived a life of prayer and rigorous penance. He had never used a bed and had found countless ways to practice severe penances, such as wearing a shirt of hair and eating only gruel. 15 years later, his pupil, St. Peter Damian, wrote in his biography: "His greatness lies in the rigorous and austere character of his interpretation of monastic life—an approach that was quite singular and unique. In the deepest recesses of his being, Romuald was an ascetic, a monk ... He reminds us of the stolid figures inhabiting the Eastern deserts, men who by most rigorous mortification and severest self-inflicted penances gave a wanton world a living example of recollection and contemplation. Their very lives constituted the most powerful sermon." Saint Romuald's body was buried at the monastery in Paranzo. Three decades later, his incorrupt body was transferred to Fabriano in 1481. Many miracles have been reported at his tomb in the Cathedral of Fabriano. The Order he founded continues to operate today, with five congregations. The most austere of those, the hermits, continue to live like St. Romuald—strict adherence to silence and prayer for the reparation of the sins of mankind.

"Destroy yourself and live only in God." – Saint Romuald

Ideas for celebrating this feast at home:

- In honor of the place (Tuscany) where St. Romuald founded an order of hermits, make a Tuscan White Bean & Garlic Soup for dinner tonight (recipe here). Perhaps give up dessert as a small penance, in honor of this saint who is known for living a life full of penance.
- Read more about St. Romuald here.
- Spend some time reading the Psalms in silence like St. Romuald. When we pray, St. Romuald said that our bodies, hearts, souls, and minds should be focused solely on God: "Better to pray one psalm with devotion and compunction than a hundred with distraction."
- Write or print out your favorite passage from Psalms. Tape it on your bathroom mirror, in your car, or someplace you'll see it every day to ponder and meditate upon.
